Our Monthly Newsletter for Teachers

Welcome to the latest TeachVac Newsletter for Teachers

Now that the resignation date for the summer term has passed for most teachers, except those on shorter than usual periods of notice working in some academies, the remaining vacancies will largely be filled by either trainees still looking for a teaching post or returners to teaching. For those new teachers still looking for a teaching post, the next three months are normally the quietest time of the year as schools become fully staffed for September. However, even if you are unable to secure a teaching post for September, there are likely to be vacancies appearing during the autumn for a January 2019 appointment. Not all schools, advertise for January and your choice may be restricted. Often schools with vacancies at that time of year are among the more challenging schools in which to teach.

TeachVac is now in its fourth year of operation providing a free to use national vacancy service for schools and teachers. The government has indicated it is considering a new approach to the supply teacher market and we are still awaiting an announcement about their proposals.

If you are still looking for your first teaching post and have been to several interviews and always been told you were second choice, now is the time to reassess your letter of application and perhaps invest in some interview training, if that is what seems to be letting you down. It is also worth considering how you will address any weakness in your practice that has been identified during your training. Acquiring some extra skills, especially for primary school teachers, may also help sway the balance whether it is an extra first aid course or some other new expertise, such as in assessment and recording using electronic data analysis.

If you are unable to find a job in England, the market for teachers trained in this country is still booming across the world and many southern hemisphere schools start their new year in January and will be hiring during the autumn. Register with our companion site at TeachVac Global for these jobs. www.teachvacglobal.com

We have revised our privacy conditions in line with the change in the law. You can access them from the front page of our web site.

Other Services

Do remember to ask your school whether they use TeachVac to save them money on recruitment. TeachVac is free to schools and applicants alike.

There is a free jobs portal available to schools - details can be found on the front page of TeachVac.

TeachSted is available to support schools undergoing an Ofsted inspection.

Our new service, TeachVac Global, is a vacancy matching service for international schools and teachers. It brings together schools looking for teachers and teachers looking for teaching posts, anywhere in the world.

The Job Alert Service – How It Works

Visit www.teachvac.co.uk and register today, it's free.

TeachVac is open to all teachers looking for primary & secondary posts at any level including leadership.

You select a subject and a location. The service looks at school vacancies within your specified area and identifies any jobs that match. The system then sends you an email alert about the job so that you can decide whether to apply. After this it is between you and the school, TeachVac does not get involved. As we use advanced technology to drive TeachVac, jobs often appear with us before they appear elsewhere. In such cases, you may be one of the first to see these vacancies.

Schools are told how many trainees there are in the subject, and how many vacancies have been set against this pool so that they know how challenging recruitment may be in each subject.
